No flag but the Old Flag,—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true
Arisen [illegible] before [illegible] sons of the brave
Whose blood [illegible] the banner [illegible] must save

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC 5, 1863

Our Danger and Duty.

The pressing danger to the cause of the Union, is not to be found so much in the strength of its avowed enemies as in the crafty cunning of half-hearted friends which aims to distract and waste the energies of patriotism, and while they profess to love and labor for it with all their power, they are watching opportunities to stab it to the heart. Herein is the peril of our free institutions—it must be met and overcome. Loyal men must be united, vigilant, determined, and indefatigable, for if among the patriots of the North quarrels and bickerings are to arise, the hope of the South will be accomplished, and the strength which ought to be employed in waging war and winning victories over the Nation's foes, will be wasted in conflicts between friends, or those who might be so, but for trifling and unimportant differences of opinion. It is no time now for discussion of mere questions of politics. The Nation's life is trembling in the balance. Its supporters have but a single duty to perform—to that, all other issues must yield, or a fearful result may come, which will make manifest the folly and vanity of all subordinate questions.

We regret at this time to observe an increasing disposition on the part of some of our Union friends, to discuss with considerable bitterness, plans and theories that are not yet properly before the country. The war is the only thing with which now we have any concern; when that is over, there will be time enough to devise schemes for the future prosperity of the Nation, but until then, is it not the part of patriotic wisdom to employ all our energies in giving strength and encouragement to our brave defenders in the field, and in supporting to the utmost, every measure of the Government which is calculated to quell the rebellion and to defeat traitors? If a different course is pursued, the loyal sentiment of the North will be weakened and disintegrated, the rebellion will acquire new vigor, and its sympathizers among us will take courage from the jealousies and differences in the Union ranks. We trust therefore that all mere side issues will be allowed at least for the present to subside, and that the whole moral, religious, intellectual and political force of the North will be united with its military strength in breaking down the iniquity of treason, and in making our country one and powerful—free and independent—fearless and glorious among the nations of the earth.

Removed at Last.—We rejoice to see in the Washington correspondence of the Union, that "R. J Atkinson, Third Auditor of the Treasury, is to be removed on account of secession sympathies it is believed. He has held on to his present position for fifteen years, and has kept his place lately by having in his hands the sole charge of the Oregon Indian war debt, which he had so nursed and kept along that nobody could get at it until he got ready. He has ceased his ruminating processes of the business, and will be succeeded by a loyal man." This removal will be hailed by all our citizens, who have suffered much pecuniarily by the savage and cross-grained obstinacy of the Auditor, whose only idea of Oregon seemed to be that it was a nest of sharpers and thieves, when in fact, he was better skilled in corruption and more adroit in roguery, than all the rascals of this coast together. We are glad his day is ended.

Rebels will not have Peace.—Voorhies, the notorious rebel sympathizer, said, not long since, at a meeting in Ohio.

> This war might be brought to a close with honor to the country. It might be brought to a close this hour. The wisest policy would be an armistice—a cessation of hostilities.

About the same time the rebel Legislature of Virginia unanimously voted down a series of resolutions proposing an address to the northern States in favor of a conference with the view to arranging a peace. And on the 16th ult. Colonel R. C Hill of the 49th North Carolina regiment, who was reported to have assured Gen Custer, at Fredericksburg, that there would soon be a peace, denies the statement, and adds:

> I am opposed to peace on any terms short of a submission of the Federals to such terms as we may dictate, which, in my opinion, should be Mason's and Dixon's line as a boundary, the exclusive navigation of the Mississippi below Cairo, full indemnification for all the negroes stolen and property destroyed, the restoration of Fortress Monroe, Jefferson, Key West, and all other strongholds which may have fallen into their possession during the war. If they are unwilling to accede to these terms, I propose an indefinite continuance of the war [rebellion] until the now existing fragments of the old Union break to pieces from mere rottenness and want of cohesion, when we will step in as the only first-class power on the Western hemisphere, and take possession of the places as subjugated and conquered provinces.

These are the people who are to be conciliated by soft words, and who would at once lay down their arms upon the withdrawal of our armies from among them.

A regular line of sailing vessels between Cleveland, Ohio, and Liverpool has been established. It is intended, also, by persons at Liverpool, to establish a line of screw steamers to sail from that port to Cleveland and Chicago, direct. The steamers will be of as large a capacity for cargo as the Welland canal and locks will admit of. The vessels will be of iron, of the first class, and to occupy not over twenty-one days in the passage from port to port.

Gen. Banks at Port Hudson.—Capt. John L. Swift, a Massachusetts officer recently delivered an address, at Boston, describing the campaign in Louisiana. The following brief sketch will doubtless be of interest to our readers.

> Capt. Swift was introduced by Mayor Lincoln, as a soldier who had volunteered first as a private in the ranks and again as a volunteer for three years or the war, and proceeded to give a connected account of the campaign from the time of the departure of Gen. Banks from this city, escorted by the 43d Massachusetts, to the [illegible] of the [illegible]. His allusions to Gen. Banks and to Col. Chickering and his gallant regiment were received with great applause. He [illegible] the indomitable will of Gen. Banks and his confidence in the result. On their first passage up the river, [illegible] said, "I wonder how long it will be before we shall return." Gen. Banks replied, "Not till we open the Mississippi." We shall not return until a path is made for us in that direction. Capt. Swift paid an earnest tribute to the admirable qualities of Admiral Farragut, and at the mention of his name three cheers were given with a will. The speaker, in reciting the history of the campaign, said that considerable comment had been excited by the first retreat from Port Hudson, which was done in order to make the enemy reduce their force. [illegible] He was on the side of Gen. [illegible] and [illegible] executed. He rated soundly the "[illegible]" who were so forward with their sneers at Banks and their advice for the conduct of the war. Tom Corwin was once asked his opinion of Extra Billy Smith. "If," said Corwin, "I should find a book and print in it all that John Quincy Adams ever did, all that Daniel Webster ever knew, and all that Extra Billy don't know, what would it be?" And so, said the speaker, if we could have a commander who could do all Alexander the Great did, with the [illegible] of all Napoleon did, and all that the [illegible] did not know what a campaign we should have. [Laughter.] Captain Swift bore his testimony to the [illegible] behavior of the colored troops, although he had not seen any such prodigies of valor as the reporters had described to enliven their accounts or the illustrated papers had pictured. And moreover he had seen no expression of contempt or dissatisfaction with their employment from any officer in the service. His mention of the [illegible] of Capt. Howard Dwight, the bravery of the gallant Col. Bartlett of the 49th and the noble death of [illegible] Colonel Rodman of the 38th, and the audience showed their sympathy by their hearty applause. During the attack on Port Hudson he saw a sight which he could never forget. As the mournful procession of the wounded passed the spot where General Banks and his staff were standing, a young officer wounded even to death was borne along. The dying soldier raised his head feebly at sight of his leader and said, "General, you see I am hit, but I give you success." Before he reached the hospital he was dead. I saw, said the speaker, a tear coming down the weather beaten face of the general, and felt that he caught inspiration and courage from the dying blessing of the young man. Tell me not that our cause will fail when souls enough, white and pure as his have gone aloft to plead our cause among the hosts of heaven.
> The speaker earnestly upheld the fame of General Banks and defended him from the assertions that it was not by his labor that Port Hudson fell. He reprobated any cessation of the war until the rebellion was crushed, and rebuked the copperheads. The views of this peace party reminded him of the scene in the farce of Box and Cox, when Box recognizes his brother because he has no strawberry mark on his right arm. Say these men to the South, "are you ready to return to your allegiance under the government?" "No." "Well then, come to our arms for we are one and indivisible!" Captain Swift concluded by urging upon his hearers the necessities of the hour and need of unconditional loyalty.

The State of Washoe.—By the following extract from the Carson Independent, it will become evident to the reader that the political pot is boiling at a high degree of temperature in Nevada Territory. Politicians are prospecting as lively as the miners. Every lawyer—first, second and third rate—in the Territory, is expecting to strike a rich lead in the State, when it is pushed up out of the Territorial chaos. Office was a profession in California with these men, and they went over the mountains full of experience in this line of business. The Independent says:

> "We snuff the smoke of the battle afar off." We see the gathering of the clans, hear the note of preparation, and watch the trains that are being laid. The Constitutional Convention will meet next week—transact the business with which they are charged—and before adjournment, appoint a day for holding an election for State officers and members of the Legislature. In anticipation, some of our patriotic citizens—who are earnestly desirous of serving the country in a civil capacity, are figuring for one or other of the offices in the gift of the people or of the Legislature. They are beginning to talk everywhere—and to the voice of the people, and their wishes, will lend a willing ear. We know what is coming. By and by old politicians will bear such a crack of thunder as will scare them out of their boots, while the small minnows who now imagine themselves to be floating in perfect security, will—well they will see sights! "Patience, cousin, and shuffle the cards!"

Does the Slave Desire Freedom.—A pitiable Copperhead sheet, which, perhaps believes what it says—and if it does is the more to be pitied—asserts that the negro does not desire freedom, nor does he deserve it. As to the latter proposition, God, who "created all men free and equal," is the best judge, but as to the former the negro himself sometimes testifies negatively with great emphasis. Take for instance the subjoined extract from Tennessee correspondence of the N Y Tribune.

> At Elk Creek we saw a colored regiment. An intelligent officer beside me spoke in the highest terms of their readiness and precision, their obedience and enthusiasm. Their camp was as spruce as a Scotch kitchen of the anti-McCarty school. Drilling as we passed, how proudly they marched beneath the flag which now to them means freedom! I am just reminded of one of the sublimest replies that it was ever my fortune to hear. Meeting a noble looking African in the depot, I asked him if he were free. His face saddened as he said, "No sah, when de Yankees come, Massa turn a mighty strong Union man, hire me out to de railroad, and move to Louisville." "But you don't want to be free; you couldn't take care of yourself; you would far rather be as you are." He understood the irony, his eyes snapped, and he answered, "When I draw de first breff of freedom, dis niggah am ready to die!"

Beecher's Speech in Liverpool.—The following is an extract of a letter from a New Yorker in Liverpool:

> I went last night to hear Beecher speak. There had been glaring hand-bills posted about the streets to incite the passions of ignorant people against him—such as quotations from the Independent at the time of the Trent affair. The house was densely crowded, and the southern sympathizers appeared to be in the majority, although many think they were not. Never was a public speaker of character greeted with such an outrageous volley of abuse and insult as was poured out on him. Yet he stood erect and bold as a lion, and he shouted out his words at the top of his voice, as it was absolutely necessary he should do, in order to be heard at all. His New England accent, in certain words, was mimicked, to the great amusement of his opponents. "Wooden hams" and "nutmegs" were cried out at him, and all sorts of insulting questions screamed out—but he went on without regarding them. I never was an admirer of Beecher before, but I am now. A man who would stand up in a foreign country before thousands who thoroughly detest him and his cause and speak as he spoke, is certainly something of a hero.

A Passport for Non Combatants.—The Columbia Carolinian vouches for the following "case."

> A lady presented herself at Branchville to enter the car for Charleston. The sentinel told her it was contrary to orders and she could not go. She told him twice to take down his musket, which barred the entrance. He refused. She drew a revolver, and pointing it at him threatened to shoot if he persisted in excluding her. With considerable surprise he demanded: "Are you a man in woman's clothing?" "No!" was the reply, "I am a woman!" "Then come in," said the sentinel, "for hang me if I'll fight a woman or be killed by one; you can't be classed with non combatants and they are what I am ordered to keep from going to Charleston."

She was recognized as a belligerent power, and allowed to pass.

Why not Now?—Gov. Seymour concluded his recent speech at Buffalo with, among others, the following words:

> I hope before many months have rolled away that all will agree that those men are traitors who would tear away the flag of our country, or would wipe out from its azure field a single star.

Why should months roll away before we agree to this proposition? Why not agree to it now, and act upon it? Has he not made up his mind?

Plain Truths Shortly Told.—Judge Shannon of Pennsylvania recently made a speech, from which we take the following, commending it to the attention of those who want to know who is responsible for the war:

> There is no use in ignoring the fact that the modern so-called Democracy [illegible] of their party [illegible] the glorious path of [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of the State. [Voices—That's so.] [illegible] who had fought [illegible] in the North there was no such [illegible] the birthplace of [illegible] of Virginia [illegible] Irish parents [illegible] of the South-west [illegible] [illegible] party to which he never entrusted [illegible].
> It is said by many [illegible] that the [illegible] of the North have [illegible]. [illegible] [Voices—That's so.] What I ask you, was the [illegible] of the country [illegible] of 1860 [illegible] [illegible] might be.
> [illegible] the Northern [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] of Sumter, the [illegible] North [illegible] Yankee [illegible] [illegible].
> The [illegible] were stripped of the arms and munitions of war, so that when the conspiracy broke forth at Sumter, the [illegible] the North [illegible] almost paralyzed until [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible].
> At [illegible] What [illegible] Abolitionism [illegible] Democratic party. We Democrats [illegible] [illegible] [Long continued applause.] [illegible] to say that the Abolitionists began the war. I, an humble Pennsylvania Democrat, assert that the charge is false. [Applause.] [illegible] assert that this rebellion was born [illegible] false Democracy, that it was nurtured by Buchanan and his Cabinet, who were the slaves and dupes of the Yanceys, the Slidells, the Davises and the [illegible] of the South. [Applause.] [illegible] assert that when the [illegible] of history shall record that the [illegible] party so betrayed our country [illegible] the wretched leaders of the modern Democracy.

Gen. Sam Houston, of Texas.—The death of Gen. Sam Houston of Texas, is announced for the third time by rebel papers. This time the announcement is probably correct, as it is accompanied by time and place. Gen. Houston was born in Virginia in 1793. For service under Jackson he was made Lieutenant in 1814. He was a District Attorney, Major General, Congressman, and at last Governor of Tennessee. He lived for a number of years among the Cherokee Indians in Tennessee, and subsequently emigrated to Texas, where he took the lead in the war of independence against Mexico, and was twice elected President of the young Republic. After its admission to the Union, Gen. Houston served many years in the United States Senate, and was Governor of the State at the beginning of the war. He for a time resisted secession, but was over ruled and deposed. From the brief mention of his death in the Richmond papers, it is supposed that Gen. Houston was still an enemy of the Confederacy, of which his old friends in other (loyal) States have no doubt. He was a great and good man, though his life has been chequered with all sorts of incidents.

Many years ago he separated from his wife in Tennessee, the cause of the separation, it has been said by his friends, being her lack of sympathy for a wound he received in the battle of the Horse Shoe, and which remained for a very long time in an ulcerous condition before it healed. When he last went to Texas he fell into the wild life characteristics of the rough frontiersmen who peopled that country and drank to such excess that the Indians with whom he came in contact nicknamed him "Big Drunk." When, however, he succeeded in establishing the independence of Texas, and became its President, he had strength of will enough to totally abandon the habits that earned him that appellation, and demeaned himself with a dignity and propriety worthy of his high station. He was a man of imposing size and presence, and had a lion like face, and expression indicative of lofty attributes of character.

Lieut. General Pemberton.—The Atlanta (Ga.) Appeal says that Lieut. Gen. Pemberton was called on to make a speech some days ago at a village south of that place. There were present some two thousand of the exchanged Vicksburg prisoners. The General said that he felt much embarrassment, because for the time, a cloud rested upon him and besides, he was willing to wait the authoritative vindication of his character by a competent tribunal. "If, however," continued the General, "any of those exempts and gentlemen who have substitutes, and those speculators who have denounced me as a coward and traitor through the press, or otherwise will organize themselves into a regiment, brigade or division, and will march with me to the front, the world shall determine who of us are cowards and who are traitors. I have not been denounced by any brave soldiers or officers from Vicksburg, neither have my soldierly qualities and patriotism been called in question by them, but by those curpers and critics at home, who have already done infinite mischief."

A True Union Woman.—A correspondent of the Marysville Appeal is responsible for the following anecdote—the truth of which is vouched for:

> A rampant Union girl in the vicinity of Howland Flat, Sierra county, got married to a Copperhead some time since, but the political difference was not known to each other until the knot was tied. During the honeymoon the weaker sex said she would not cook for any Secessionist. The husband turned white and exclaimed, "I am one." She furiously responded, "You are! Now look at me" (pointing her finger straight at him). "I have a brother in the Federal army, and if he gets killed by a rebel I'll knock the top right off your head." There has been no secession in that family since.

There is no other way to cure disease but by first purifying the whole system so as to create a healthy circulation.

[illegible] The first medical men of the age agree with us that no disease of any extent can be cured without using such medicines as will act directly upon the blood. Why many medical men have failed to cure chronic diseases is, because the medicines used have not been such as will act beneficially on the blood.

The many thousands of bottles which have been used by the public, and the many hospitals and families supplied by the physicians, warrant us in saying that the last two years we have been more successful with our Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup in curing hopeless cases of chronic diseases that have any other [illegible] the hands of physicians [illegible] the public.

It is now admitted that no combination is known to the profession acts so promptly upon disease as our SCOVILL'S BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP.

The Firemen's Election.—This important event transpires on Monday next, and though none but active members of the Fire Department participate, their character as Firemen divests them of no rights or interests as citizens, and their fellow-citizens, of course, feel a deep and abiding desire for their prosperity and efficiency as guardians of our city against the ravages of conflagration. Devoted to the best interests of the whole country, and especially to the welfare of the city of our home, we trust we may be permitted to allude to this subject in a few suggestions, without being understood as advocating the claims or detracting from the merits of any personal aspirant. Too much importance can scarcely attach to the action of our fellow-citizens in the exercise of their peculiar annual privilege on Monday. The selection of a Chief Engineer should be made, not through favoritism, popularity, as a test of company strength and influence, or from any other motive equally unworthy the intelligence and character of the Department, but with an eye single to the personal qualifications of the candidate. In times of danger—when the crackling fire inspires all around him with a fearful excitement he should be cool, prompt, and possessed of a matured judgment. Much depends upon him, hundreds of thousands of dollars in private property may be at the mercy of his discretion, he has the disposition of the forces at a fire, and the right to decide in an emergency what building shall be blown up, what shall be torn down, and to save which particular property the efforts of the companies shall be directed. In a city as densely populated as ours, these contingencies may arise at any moment. Nor is his office a sinecure in times of safety from a threat of devastation. He has a general supervision of the machinery and appliances of the entire Department, and his control of them may promote harmony or arouse dissensions, jealousy and distrust among the members of different company organizations. The salary attached to the office is, to be sure—if we may anticipate for the next year the same exemption from fires enjoyed during the one now closed—sufficient for the services rendered, yet it is by no means a place of profit. We hope that the candidate—whoever he may be—possessing the highest degree of efficiency will be fixed in the choice, with direct reference to nothing save qualifications for the place.

Sailing of the Steamer.—Owing to the large amount of freight to be taken down to the steamship Oregon, the Julia did not cast off her fasts until 4 o'clock, last evening. A large number of our fellow-citizens were on the wharf to witness the departure of friends, and the hurry and bustle of carriages, drays, freight trucks, &c., added no little to the animation and interest of the scene.

Shipment of Treasure.—The Oregon yesterday carried away quite a sum in treasure, considering that the Pacific had sailed so recently, from all we can learn since she sailed, we believe that $750,000 is not too high a valuation to be placed upon the gold on board. The amount now sent forward by the Oregon will swell the shipments of the past week to over $1,000,000. Wells, Fargo & Co. yesterday shipped $100,000, and Messrs. Richards & McCraken, Agents of the ship, sent $34,000. The amount in private hands, among one hundred passengers, many of them known to be possessed of large amounts in dust, would more than make up quarter of a million by the steamer.

Shipment of Freight.—The Oregon took nearly 7,000 boxes apples, 50 boxes eggs, 20 carcases sheep, 20 qrs. beef, 2 bundles fruit trees, a dozen packages merchandise, a lot of [illegible] hides, and several large and very heavy boxes containing specimens of different metals, ores, &c. Some portion of the freight is for Victoria.

The Last Man just a Leetle too Late.—While the Julia was backing out into the stream, and before she had gone her length from the dock, the baggage of the last man arrived, having been detained a moment by the wagon wheel bringing up against a corner stancheon on the wharf. A jolly old matelot at our elbow suggested that the unfortunate baggage had made good time on the last tack, and would have been all right if it had not "missed stays." We couldn't see it. The baggage missed going, and still "stays" for the next steamer.

Street Affray.—Quite a crowd was drawn together at the corner of Starrs' stove store, Front street, about 5 o'clock, last evening, by an affray in which Col. W. L. White caned Dr. Loryea, and only desisted upon the Doctor's drawing a revolver. Considerable excitement and very profane swearing kept the crowd together for some time. We did not learn of any arrest being made.

Circuit Court.—The trial Jury was discharged yesterday from longer attendance—having been on duty, with slight intermissions, for four weeks. The law docket has been cleared of jury cases, many of them having been sharply contested, and thus occupied more time than usual. The Court will be open at two o'clock to-day for motions, &c., after which it will adjourn till Monday, the 14th inst., when chancery causes will be heard.

The County Court will occupy the Court room next week, for Probate and County business.

Theatrical.—Miss Fanny Morgan, and the entire Company that have been performing at the Willamette Theatre, in this city, visit the Dalles to-day, having an engagement there, beginning with this evening. We trust their efforts may be appreciated, and the Company successful, as they deserve to be.

The Little People.

A dreary place would be this earth
Were there no little people in it
The song [illegible] life would lose its mirth
Were there no children to begin it

No little forms like buds to grow
And make the [illegible] heart surrender,
No little hands on breast and brow
To keep the thrilling love chords tender

No babe within our arms to leap
No little feet toward us [illegible] bounding
No little knees in prayer to bend
Our lips the sweet words lending

What would the ladies do for work
Were there no pants or [illegible] to tear [illegible]
No tiny dresses to embroider
No cradle for their watchful caring?

No rosy boys at wintry morn,
With satchel to the [illegible] house hasting,*
No merry shouts [illegible]
No precious [illegible] tasting

Tall grave grown people at the door
Tall grave grown people at the table
The [illegible] business [illegible]
The dames [illegible] as they're able

The sterner souls would get [illegible],
Unfeeling natures more inhuman,
And man to stone coldness turn,
And woman would be less than woman

For in that clime [illegible] which we reach
Through [illegible] of [illegible] untold long,
The little ones with cherub smile
Are still our father's face beholding *

So said His voice in whom we trust
When in Judea's realm a preacher
He [illegible] a child in front the [illegible]
And bore in simple guise their teacher

Life's song [illegible] would lose its charm,
Were there no babies to begin it
A doleful place this world would be,
Were there no little people in it

* There angels do always behold the face of my Father, which is in Heaven —Matt xviii 10

The Pearl Necklace.

The engineer, M G Padurch, narrates in his diary the following remarkable story — A Jew of Volhynia, named Ivan Zweigbaum, bought a beautiful pearl necklace He went to Warsaw in order to sell it again The jewellers to whom he addressed himself greatly admired it, and one of them advised him to offer it to the imperial court, for, said he, you will hardly find a private individual in a position to buy such a treasure Zweigbaum followed this advice He went to St Petersburg, where fortune favored him, for he was permitted to present the necklace to the empress herself The most respectable jewellers were asked, and unanimously valued it at more than 100,000 rubles, and the illustrious lady, pleased with the prodigious size and incomparable lustre of the pearls ordered one of her chamberlains to pay at once the Jew the price agreed upon

This functionary intimated to Zweigbaum to follow him, conducted him to his own house and there told him to write out the receipt, and then to wait for him until he returned from the imperial treasury with the amount. The receipt being made out, the functionary took it and went out of the room, stating that he would be back in a few minutes But hours passed, and the chamberlain did not return. Zweigbaum then began to suspect some foul play, and wished to leave the room; but to his horror, he discovered that he was shut in Twilight at last commenced to cast its dark hues over the various objects before him, and he who shortly before saw paradise on earth opening before him now stood hopeless before an awful mystery

At last the door opened, but it was only to admit several Cossacks, who seized Zweigbaum, and despite his cries, forced him down on a chair, shaved him, cut off his hair, and then put him in a closed carriage, which took him far from St Petersburg After several months he arrived at the place of his destination, which was the Caucasus, where he was enrolled in the army

One fine spring day he was working in the garden of the general the children of this officer with their governess came there. A boy holding in his hand an oar walked before them, for a row on the large pond had been projected They all entered the elegant boat, which swiftly glided along under the strokes of the boatman. The little boy stood on a bench, the governess clasping him in her arms Suddenly his little sister, who was very frolicsome, jumped out of fun on the governess, who, losing her balance, gave a push to the boy, who was thus precipitated into the water Loud were the cries of distress of the party reaching Zweigbaum, who had spent his youth on the banks of the Dnieper, and was an excellent swimmer. Scarcely was he informed of the cause of the cries when he plunged into the water, found the child, and brought it to light alive.

The general, made acquainted with the occurrence, ordered the soldier into his room, with the view of rewarding him for his feat Zweigbaum having exchanged his wet for dry clothes, obeyed at once the order of the general, and he, expressing his thanks to the soldier, asked him wherein he could serve him Zweigbaum hereupon asked the general one single favor, and this was to be allowed to tell the general his history At these words the general smiled, and replied that he knew all about his history, for when he had been sent there as a recruit, the commander was informed that the new soldier had some fixed idea in his head about a necklace sold to the empress Nevertheless, the general, out of gratitude, consented to listen to the tale.

Zweigbaum now narrated his tale with so much clearness and animation, that the general felt moved, and convinced that the Jew labored under no delusion

Sometime afterwards the general went to St Petersburg, taking the Jewish soldier with him He told the Emperor Nicholas the astonishing adventure of the Jew He was called, and the emperor saw at once he had no fixed idea He asked him if he would know again the treacherous chamberlain Zweigbaum's answer being in the affirmative, the emperor ordered all court functionaries to appear in the palace The Jew recognized at once the wretch who was the cause of all his sufferings He was immediately arrested and condemned to the same condition to which he had subjected Zweigbaum. He was shaved and sent as a private to the Caucasus The Jew, however, received the sum of money due to him

A Rebel "Pow Wow" Denied —A day or two after the battle of Stone river, and while burial parties were yet busy upon the field a minister of the Gospel, of secession proclivities, applied to the General commanding at Murfreesboro for permission to take the body of the rebel General James Rains to Nashville —his former home—for burial General Rosecrans, alive to the courtesies of military life, readily consented, when it was intimated to him that the secessionists of Nashville were intending to make the funeral a rebel ovation The idea stung him. Turning to the applicant in his earnest, brusque manner, he remarked

"I wish it to be distinctly understood that there is to be no fuss made over this affair—none at all sir I won't permit it sir, in the face of this bleeding army My own officers are here laid and unburied, and the bodies of my brave soldiers are yet on the field, among the rocks and cedars You may have the corpse sir, but remember distinctly that you can't have an infernal secession pow wow over it in Nashville "

Teaching the Old Idea how to Shoot.—Yesterday a knot of electors were engaged in canvassing the qualifications of one of the candidates for Municipal honors, when one of the knot declared that a certain candidate was a first-class, generous-hearted man 'Why," said he, "I've known him to go from door to door, and from house to house, teaching grown people how to read and write' 'Aye ' responded a wag, ' but I know a man who he charged $50 for teaching him to write his own name," " Well retorted the other, "it was worth the money—wasn't it?" 'Yes,' replied the wag, ' but hear me out after your friend had taught the man to write his own name, the pupil had to pay fifty dollars more before he was able to read it' —Colonist

"No one should indulge in such horrid anticipations," as the henpecked husband said when the parson told him that he would be joined to his wife in another world, never to separate from her

"Parson," said he, ' I beg you won't mention the circumstance again

INDUCED by the extensive sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, [illegible] of ignorant Quacks and [illegible] adventurers, have opened upon suffering humanity the flood gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor Whiskey, vilely compounded with injurious drugs and christened Tonics, [illegible] and Bitters

Beware of the innumerable array of Alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles and big bellied kegs, under the modest appellation of Bitters which instead of curing only aggravate disease, and leave the disappointed sufferer in despair

Hoofland's German Bitters!

Are not a new and untried article but have stood the test of fifteen years trial by the American public and their reputation and sale are not rivalled by any similar preparation

The proprietors have thousands of letters from the most eminent

CLERGYMEN,
LAWYERS,
PHYSICIANS
and
CITIZENS,

Testifying of their own personal knowledge, to the beneficial effects and medical virtues of these Bitters

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want to build up your constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want to get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

If so, use HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

From Rev J Newton Brown, Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr C M Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before and had almost despaired of regaining. I, therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them

J NEWTON BROWN.
PHILADELPHIA, June 23 1861

PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart bottles, compounded of the cheapest whiskey or common rum, costing from 20 to 40 cents per gallon, the taste disguised by Anise or Coriander Seed.

This class of Bitters has caused and will continue to cause as long as they can be sold, hundreds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use the system is kept continually under the influence of Alcoholic Stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for Liquor is created and kept up, and the result is all the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death

For those who desire and will have a Liquor Bitters, we publish the following receipt Get One Bottle Hoofland's German Bitters and mix with Three Quarts of Good Brandy or Whiskey, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medicinal virtues and true excellence any of the numerous Liquor Bitters in the market and will cost much less. You will have all the virtues of Hoofland's Bitters in connection with a good article of Liquor at a much less price than these inferior preparations will cost you.

ATTENTION, SOLDIERS!

AND THE FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS

We call the attention of all having relations or friends in the army to the fact that " HOOFLAND'S German Bitters " will cure nine tenths of the diseases induced by exposures and privations incident to camp life. In the lists, published almost daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hoofland's German Bitters. Diseases resulting from disorders of the digestive organs are speedily removed We have no hesitation in stating that, if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers, hundreds of lives might be saved that otherwise will be lost

We call particular attention to the following remarkable and well authenticated cure of one of the nation's heroes, whose life, to use his own language, "has been saved by the Bitters "

PHILADELPHIA, August 23, 1862.

Messrs Jones & Evans—Well, gentlemen, your Hoofland's German Bitters has saved my life There is no mistake in this It is vouched for by numbers of my comrades, some of whose names are appended, and who were fully cognizant of all the circumstances of my case. I am, and have been for the last four years a member of Sherman's celebrated battery, and under the immediate command of Captain R B Ayres Through the exposure attendant upon my arduous duties, I was attacked in November last with inflammation of the lungs, and was for seventy two days in the hospital. This was followed by great debility, heightened by an attack of dysentery. I was then removed from the White House, and sent to this city on board the steamer "State of Maine," from which I landed on the 28th of June Since that time I have been about as low as one could be and still retain a spark of vitality For a week or more I was scarcely able to swallow anything and if I did force a morsel down, it was immediately thrown up again

I could not even keep a glass of water on my stomach Life could not last under these circumstances, and accordingly the physicians who had been working faithfully, though unsuccessfully to rescue me from the grasp of the dread Archer, frankly told me they could do no more for me, and advised me to see a clergyman, and to make such disposition of my limited funds as best suited me. An acquaintance who visited me at the hospital, Mr Frederick Steinbron, of Sixth below Arch Street, advised me as a forlorn hope, to try your Bitters and kindly procured a bottle From the time I commenced taking them the gloomy shadow of death receded and I am now, thank God for it getting better Though I have taken but two bottles, I have gained ten pounds and I feel sanguine of being permitted to rejoin my wife and daughter, from whom I have heard nothing for eighteen months for, gentlemen, I am a loyal Virginian from the vicinity of Front Royal To your invaluable Bitters I owe the certainty of life which has taken the place of vague fears—to your Bitters will I owe the glorious privilege of again clasping to my bosom those who are dearest to me in life

Very truly yours
ISAAC MALONE.

We fully concur in the truth of the above statement, as we had despaired of seeing our comrade, Mr Malone, restored to life
